

Handout 1: November 29

Sanjeev Arora

This is actually an assignment. You have to express your thoughts about something that you liked in this course. You can do it either in prose or poetry. Limit it to a page. (It counts as two homework questions, so spend a few hours on it.) Here are two examples from Nemanja Isailovic.

(Haiku)

*A set of problems,
Intractable or easy?
We may never know.*

(Limerick)

*There once were a tough set of problems;
Many theorists tried hard to solve 'em.
But all they e'er say
Was, "Just give me a way
To solve one and I'll have solved all of 'em."*

Of course, you can also write a serious piece. Example: "My thoughts on randomness."